

Chalk these up as good memories. Collinsville's FFA Chapter produced a handful of great results in the Indoor Exhibits at the Tulsa State Fair this year as several Grand Champion winners were named in the presentation of grain boxes. Chapter Advisor Jennifer Hamlin reported results that reflected weeks of preparation and skilled creativity by these students. Hannah Ramsey won first place in halter mares aged four and under, and eighth place in showmanship. Elizabeth Wedlake placed fourth in halter mares aged four and under and 10th in showmanship. Julie Branan placed first in class-60 prospect steer, fifth in class-6 commercial heifer, and fourth in class-21 commercial heifer. Hope Wolf-Rush earned 10th place for a wreath design. Barrett Matlock was the first-place winner in grain box (canola) and claimed eighth place for T-post drive. Laryssa Wheeler was named Grand Champion for her clover grain box and placed ninth for her open terrarium. Josh Guess was named Grand Champion for his legume grain box and seventh for his construction of a three-point trailer hookup, which he uses with his own pickup. Caysi Meyer won fourth place for a decorated pumpkin, 10th place photo board, and sixth place for a grain box. Laney Branan won third place for the clever and comely construction of a steel fire pit. Mikaela Deerdoff's landscape drawing came in seventh place. Alyson Barrett's open terrarium was eighth. And Mckena Lewis's miniature greenhouse, built to scale, was eighth. Follow me on Twitter @CFavalora