

Master Gardeners set Lunch & Learn series The next Tulsa Master Gardeners Lunch & Learn session is Tuesday, Nov. 7. The session, "Composting 101," is set from 12:10-12:50 p.m. at Tulsa Central Library, 400 Civic Center. The sessions are free, and no registration is required. Attendees are encouraged to bring lunch to enjoy during the presentation. For information, call 918-746-3701. The final program for the fall series is "How to Plant Bulbs" on Nov. 14. Guest speaker to discuss rose rosette disease The Tulsa Rose Society will feature a guest speaker during its November meeting Sunday, Nov. 12. Special guest speaker Jennifer Olson of the Oklahoma State University entomology and plant pathology department will discuss the topic of rose rosette disease. Olson will cover how to identify a rose bush with the disease, share the latest information and test study results. She will also talk about the test gardens at OSU and at the Tulsa Garden Center. A handout with pictures will be available to help home rose gardeners distinguish healthy new growth versus rose rosette disease symptoms. The meeting starts at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Tulsa Garden Center, 2435 S. Peoria. There will be refreshments and door prizes. The meeting is free, and everyone is invited to attend.

Tulsa Orchid Society to host orchid judge Sunday Members of the Tulsa Orchid Society will host its monthly meeting Sunday, Nov. 12. The November meeting will feature guest speaker Bryon Rinke, an American Orchid Society judge who is associated with the department of biology at Southwestern College at Winfield, Kansas. He will present a program on how orchids are judged. The meeting will start at 1:30 p.m. Sunday in the Tulsa Garden Center Ballroom (lower level), 2435 S. Peoria Ave. The meetings are free to attend and open to the public. Garden club information or garden-related events can be sent to Tulsa World writer Jessica Rodrigo at jessica.rodrigo@tulsaworld.com.
