

Of 40 Oklahoma State University students, three Owasso students were named as the Top 20 Freshmen Men and Women for 2011 at the university. Owassons Chris Haverkamp, Marty Jones and Charles Maloy were selected as the Top 20 Freshmen Men for 2011, according to a press release from Oklahoma State University. Haverkamp is an architecture major, and he's the son of Janneke and David Haverkamp. Jones is majoring in agricultural education, and he's the son of Trena and Mike Jones. Maloy is majoring in biochemistry and molecular biology and pre-med, and he's the son of Cindy and John Maloy. The selection of students, who are now sophomores at OSU, is based upon scholastic achievement, leadership and participation in campus activities, service and awareness of the student's role at the university, according to the release. The honor is to recognize and encourage leadership among freshmen. Mortar Board has conducted interviews with the students and selected the Top 10 Freshmen Men and Woman, according to the release. The Top 10 Freshmen Men and Women were recognized on Oct. 8, and Jones and Maloy were named as two of the Top 10 Freshmen Men. Owasso was the only city to have three men recognized for the honor of Top 20 Freshmen Men for 2011, with other schools have one to two recognized for the honor.
