

Create curb appeal with help from local designer The Tulsa Garden Center will host an informational lecture Tuesday, Sept. 19, about fruit trees. Kenda Woodburn, noted OSU Extension educator, will host a session and field questions about what trees do especially well in the Oklahoma climate and which trees can thrive in an urban environment. The lecture is scheduled from 6:30-8 p.m. Tuesday. Admission is free to Tulsa Garden Center members, and $5 for nonmembers. To enroll or for more information, call 918-576-5155. Garden center to host succulent workshop The Tulsa Garden Center and a local nursery owner are partnering to host a workshop Thursday, Sept. 21, focusing on succulent plants. Jalene Riley, owner of Utopia Gardens, will facilitate a class on creating and caring for a dish garden with succulents. Too often, neglectful gardeners bring home a beautiful dish garden, anticipating months of enjoyment, only to discover their haphazard care has doomed their garden to an early death or stunted growth. This workshop will begin at 9:30 a.m. Thursday in the auditorium of the Tulsa Garden Center, 2435 S. Peoria Ave. Admission is $25 to TGC members, $30 for nonmembers. Plant material, container and all necessary supplies are included in the admission fee. Reservations are required. For more information or to enroll, email info@tulsagarencenter.com or call 918-576-5155. Garden club information or garden-related events can be sent to Tulsa World writer Jessica Rodrigo at jessica.rodrigo@tulsaworld.com.